

GRADUATE STUDENT ACADEMIC ADVISING AND ENGAGEMENT

Academic Advising and Support

Graduate Academic Advising is responsible for supporting student learning through academic advising services. Programs and services are directed toward fostering students' academic progress and achievement. Graduate academic advising adheres to the university's academic integrity policies, academic policies and practices, and the community values and expectations espoused in the Bentley Core Values.

To support this mission, we offer academic advising meetings and provide academic support programs. The graduate academic advising team is part of a comprehensive campus advising system designed to connect students with MS and MBA program directors, internship coordinators, and other campus resources and professionals.

Student Engagement

Within Graduate Academic Advising and Engagement, our objective is to help graduate students identify resources and services which can make the graduate experience one that is robust, engaging, and meaningful. The graduate school supports a lively community of full-time and part-time students from around the world, whose diverse experiences and backgrounds contribute to learning and personal development beyond the scope of the academic program of study. Our students are offered unique professional and social opportunities accessible to all graduate students, whether their experience takes place on campus or is experienced through remote modalities. We are committed to providing graduate students with support outside of the classroom to enhance the graduate student experience.
